WELCOME TO METRO BOSTON

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT, REPORTER

Each year, Nova Scotia gifts Boston a Christmas tree as a thank you for the aid provided after the deadly Halifax Explosion. It's a special time of the year for both Boston and the Canadian province — especially this year, the 100th anniversary of the tragedy. Metro spoke with Leo Glavine, Nova Scotia's minister of communities, culture and heritages, about the annual tradition. Read more inside and at metroboston.us.

US TO SUE TO BLOCK AT&T AND TIME WARNER DEAL

The U.S. Department of Justice will filed a lawsuit on Monday to block AT&T Inc's $85.4 billion acquisition of Time Warner Inc. The legal challenge was expected after AT&T rejected a demand by the Justice Department earlier this month to divest its DirecTV unit or Time Warner's Turner Broadcasting — which contains news network CNN — in order to win antitrust approval. AT&T's chief executive said then that he would defend the deal in court to win approval if necessary. The No. 2 U.S. wireless carrier struck a deal in October 2016 to buy Time Warner, which also owns the premium channel HBO and movie studio Warner Bros., in order to compete with emerging technology companies by bundling video entertainment on its mobile service.

US DESIGNATES N. KOREA A STATE SPONSOR OF TERROR

2 President Donald Trump designated North Korea a state sponsor of terrorism on Monday, allowing the United States to impose additional sanctions and penalties against Pyongyang as it continues to pursue nuclear weapons programs. The Republican president, who has traded personal barbs and insults with North Korean leader Kim Jong Un, said the Treasury Department will announce the additional sanctions against North Korea on Tuesday. The designation came a week after Trump returned from a 12-day, five nation trip to Asia in which the U.S. president made containing North Korea's nuclear ambitions a centerpiece of his discussions with world leaders. "Today, the United States is designating North Korea as a state sponsor of terrorism," Trump told reporters at the White House.

DEMONSTRATION

3 University of Zimbabwe students take part in a demonstration on Monday in Harare, to demand the withdrawal of Grace Mugabe's doctorate and refused to sit their exams as pressure builds on Zimbabwe's President Robert Mugabe to resign. Zimbabwe's president faced the threat of impeachment by his own party on Monday after his shock insistence he still holds power in Zimbabwe despite a military takeover and a noon deadline to end his 37-year autocratic rule.

5 THINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW

TRUMP CALLS FOR LYNCH SUSPENSION FROM NFL

4 President Donald Trump on Monday said Oakland Raiders running back Marshawn Lynch should be suspended by the NFL if he continues to protest during the national anthem after Lynch sat during a rendition of the song before Sunday's game in Mexico City. Lynch and other NFL players have taken a knee or sat during the anthem as a way to protest police brutality and racial inequality in the U.S. Trump has called their actions disrespectful to the country and in the past has said protesting players should be fired. After sitting during the "Star-Spangled Banner," the five-time Pro Bowler rose for the Mexican national anthem while getting equipment put on. The Raiders went on to lose 33-8 to the New England Patriots at Estadio Azteca.

ROSE SHOWS SUSPENDED AFTER ALLEGATIONS

5 Television shows hosted by Charlie Rose on Monday were suspended by CBS, PBS and Bloomberg following a report by the Washington Post in which eight women say he sexually harassed them. PBS and Bloomberg said in statements that they were suspending Rose's signature interview show, distributed on both outlets, citing the allegations in the newspaper story. A CBS News spokeswoman told Reuters that Rose has been suspended and a statement is forthcoming from the network. Rose in a statement apologized for what he called his "inappropriate behavior," but said he didn't believe all the allegations against him were accurate.

Christmas tree from Nova Scotia will arrive on Boston Common on Tuesday

There's a lot of history behind the Boston Common Christmas tree, which hails each year from Nova Scotia.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
@kristindakota
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

On Tuesday, a 53-foot-tall white spruce will be welcomed at Boston Common, where it will soon be strung with thousands of festive lights.

This is not just any Christmas tree, though; it's 100 years of gratitude from Nova Scotia.

Each year, the Canadian province gifts Boston a Christmas tree as thanks for the aid the city provided after the deadly Halifax Explosion on Dec. 6, 1917, when two ships collided in the Halifax Harbor, resulting in the largest man-made explosion at that time in history.

Nearly 2,000 people died "almost immediately," said Leo Glavine, Nova Scotia's Minister of Communities, Culture and Heritages. Nine thousand more were injured and 20,000 left homeless — more than a quarter of Halifax's population then.

"This was catastrophic, but that response that came out of Boston and the New England states ended up saving many lives," Glavine said.

Every Nova Scotian child learns about the tragedy. Glavine knows the story especially well, having been a social studies teacher who taught the explosion in his class.

Glavine can give all the details: Boston officials learned of the tragedy by telegraph within two hours of it happening, he said, and the next day, loaded a train with 33 doctors, 77 nurses, Red Cross relief teams, supplies and more. Boston residents also raised $100,000 to help Halifax rebuild — the equivalent of more than $2 million today.

"The response really was quite overwhelming, so Nova Scotia, and in particular the city of Halifax, wondered, 'How do we respond with more than thanks?'" Glavine said. Officials sent the first tree to Boston in 1918, and then made it an annual tradition since 1971.

"That we continue to do it now into the 100th year [since the tragedy] is that real gesture of what it has meant, to not only several generations, but the generations of the future," he added.

For Nova Scotians, sending off the tree from Halifax is a huge celebration. On Friday, Nov. 17, before the nearly-five-story spruce — the largest Nova Scotia has ever gifted — started on its journey while strapped to a flatbed truck, Nova Scotians gathered in Halifax's Parade Square.

"Those who come to Parade Square get that moment where they can also feel very much involved, though they won't be physically in Boston," Glavine said. "It's about the spirit of people wrapped up in moment, and [as the tree leaves], they walk behind the flatbed to start the parade to Boston."

Glavine got to go a step further and accompany the tree all the way here, where it will be welcomed with another celebration around 11 a.m. Tuesday. As someone who has taught the tragedy and taken students to a local maritime museum that houses artifacts from that time, it's a special honor.

"To see that, to me, and now to be able to accompany this tree … is really, I guess you'd say, a bucket list moment," he said.

The tree is expected to enter Boston Common at the corner of Beacon and Charles Streets at 11 a.m. It will be lit during Boston's Official Tree Lighting ceremony on Thursday, Nov. 30.

Gyongyi Dalnoki founded Boston startup LiziCards to let people customize their holiday cards. PROVIDED BY LIZICARDS

Boston startup lets you personalize your holiday cards with voice recordings

LiziCards wants to help you send unique and heart-warming holiday cards.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
@kristindakota
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Want to make your holiday cards extra-unique this year, but don't have a crafty bone in your body? Don't worry, a Boston startup is here to help.

LiziCards, a Boston-based greeting-card company, launched Monday with the aim to change how people pick out and send off cards for all occasions.

The company goes beyond offering unique designs by letting users upload personal photos and voice recordings through its mobile app, so they can create truly intimate messages.

Gyongyi Dalnoki, the founder of the company, was inspired by her 2-year-old daughter, Lizi. Dalnoki moved here from Hungary with her husband, and when Lizi was born, Dalnoki wanted to send custom Christmas cards back to her parents.

While many people create their own holiday cards featuring family photos, Dalnoki wanted to go a step further and add a recorded, personalized message, but she didn't see that option anywhere.

"Since I couldn't find what I was looking for, I decided to make it myself," she said in a statement. "I studied economics at university, not creative design, so this was a bit of a challenge for me, but I've always been good at crafts and I was sure I could get it done."

That one card took more than a week to make, she said, "but when my parents opened it, saw pictures of Lizi and heard her sweet voice cooing and babbling, it was well worth the effort."

That card stayed on their mantle for months after Christmas.

"When they told me that… [and that] whenever they walked, by they would open it to hear Lizi's voice, I realized I had come up with something special," Dalnoki said. "LiziCards was born."

The company launched Monday with card designs for Christmas, Hanukkah, New Year's, new baby announcements, birthdays and more. All the cards are designed by award-winning graphic designers and artists, according to Dalnoki, and assembled by hand in Boston.

Once you build the card and record the message through the app, the company mails the cards either to you, or to your recipient.

More designs will be added over the coming months so that LiziCards has an option for every occasion, and so that Dalnoki can achieve her goal of making "the most personal and best quality greeting cards," that "put a smile on both the face of the person sending the card, and the person receiving it."

Download the LiziCards app through the Apple Store or at lizicards.com.

"[My goal is to make] the most personal and best-quality greeting cards [that] put a smile on both the face of the person sending the card, and the person receiving it."

New Arthritis Painkiller Works on Contact and Numbs the Pain in Minutes

New cream works faster and is more targeted than oral medications. Key ingredients penetrate the skin within minutes to relieve joint arthritis pain. Users report significant immediate relief.

By Robert Ward
Associated Health Press

BOSTON – Innovus Pharmaceuticals has introduced a new arthritis pain relief treatment that works in minutes.

When applied to an arthritic joint, or a painful area on the body, it delivers immediate relief that lasts for hours and hours.

The powerful painkilling effect is created by the creams active ingredients, three special medical compounds.

Anesthetics are used in hospitals during surgery. They block nerve signals from the brain so that patients don't feel pain and they work fast.

The anesthetic found in Apeaz™ is the strongest available without a prescription.

The cream form allows users to directly target their area of pain. It works where it is applied. The company says this is why the product is so effective and fast acting.

"Users can expect to start feeling relief immediately after applying," explains Dr. Bassam Damaj, President of Innovus Pharmaceuticals.

"There will be a pleasant warming sensation that is followed by a cool, soothing one. This is how you know that the active ingredients have reached the affected joint and tissue."

Works In Minutes

For arthritis suffers, Apeaz™ offers impressive advantages over traditional medications. The most obvious is how quickly it relieves pain discomfort.

The cream contains the maximum approved OTC dose of a top anesthetic, which penetrates the skin in a matter of minutes to numb the area that's in pain. This relief lasts for several hours.

Published pre-clinical animal studies have shown that the ingredients in Apeaz™ can also prevent further bone and cartilage destruction.

There are also no negative side effects like from oral medication. Apeaz™ delivers its ingredients through the skin. Oral medications are absorbed in the digestive tract. Overtime, the chemicals in pills can tear the delicate lining of the stomach, causing ulcers and bleeding.

When compared to other arthritis medications, Apeaz™ is a fraction of the cost. At less than $2 a day, the cream quickly is becoming a household name.

Those with terrible arthritis in their hands and fingers, love how easy Apeaz™ is to open. The jar fits in the palm of the hand, which makes it much easier to use.

Instant Pain Relief Without a Prescription

Many Apeaz™ users report significant improvements in daily aches and pain. Many more report increased flexibility and less stiffness. They are moving with less pain for the first time in years, like Henry Esber, an early user of Apeaz™.

"I've tried more pills than I can count. I've also had a handful of cortisone shots. Nothing is as effective as this product. With Apeaz™, I get relief right away. I rub a little on my my hands. It keeps the pain away. It also prevents the pain from getting really bad. It's completely changed my life."

How It Works

Apeaz™ contains the highest, non-prescription OTC dose of a medical compound that fights pain on contact. When applied to the skin it goes to work within minutes by penetrating right to the source of your pain, numbing the nerve endings.

"This is why Apeaz™ is so effective for people with arthritis pain. It reduces pain while adding an additional potential layer of joint support," explains Damaj.

A New Way to Treat Pain

Although Dr. Damaj and his team say that their cream is the fastest and most effective way to relieve arthritis pain, they believe there is still a reason to take joint pills. The most effective are those which help to further lubricate, strengthen and support the joints.

Apeaz™: Quick Acting Pain and Arthritis Cream is Now Available Without a Prescription

That's why every container of Apeaz™ comes with ArthriVarx™, a breakthrough supplement that's taking on joint support in an entirely new way.

ArthriVarx™ works on your joints, making it the perfect companion to Apeaz™.

"ArthriVarx™ contains special compounds published to lubricate the joints and connective tissues that surrounds them. With daily use, they improve joint health and can give an extra cushion," explains Dr. Damaj.

"When combined with Apeaz™, it becomes the perfect system to tackle arthritis. While the anesthetic component of Apeaz™ is working on the outside, relieving pain on contact, ArthriVarx™ is working on the inside, adding cushioning to the joints."

A Powerful Combination For Arthritis and Joint Pain

With daily use, Apeaz™ plus ArthriVarx™ helps users live a more vital, pain free life without any of the negative side effects or interactions associated with oral drugs.

By delivering fast, long-lasting, and targeted relief from joint pain and supporting long-term joint health, Apeaz™ and ArthriVarx™ is the newest, most effective way to tackle your arthritis pain.

You can now enjoy an entirely new level of comfort that's both safe and affordable. It is also extremely effective, especially if nothing else has worked well for you.

Pink doth not cringe

Pink and Christina Aguilera once had beef. It was a very long time ago, when this nation's collective dreams were more solidified and less dusty particles. But because people are BORED and demand DRAMA from their celebrities, the narrative continues.

At the American Music Awards Sunday night, the quick-camera people caught Pink — who might just have Resting Bitch Face — seemingly cringing while Christina Aguilera performed a medley of Whitney Houston hits.

The 38-year-old took to Twitter to clarify that she has nothing but love for the "Genie in the Bottle" singer.

"Christina f—king killed it tonight for one of our favorite singers ever. This about Whitney, and I am in awe of Christina's talent. Show the clip where I'm in tears, you negative Nancy's."

So yeah, stop pitting women against each other y'all! Besides, how could they hate each other when they both sang in the updated forever hit, "Lady Marmalade?" Exactly!

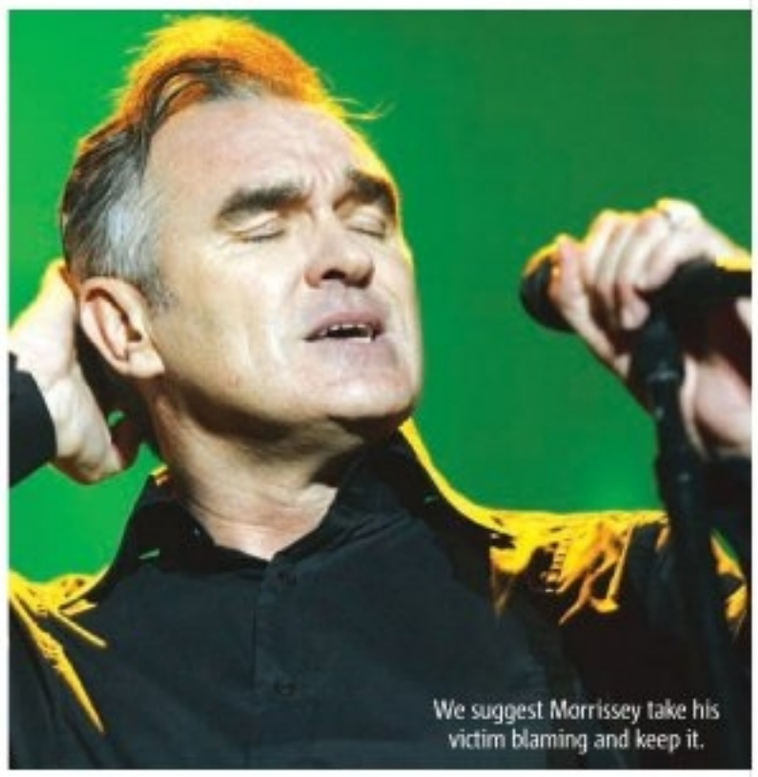
Stop trying to make Pink vs. Christina Aguilera happen.

Morrissey is still the worst

Over the weekend, former Smiths frontman Morrissey defended the likes of Kevin Spacey in an interview with German publication Der Spiegel. It's pretty bad!

"As far as I know, he [Spacey] was in a bedroom with a 14-year-old," the 58-year-old told the site. "Kevin Spacey was 26, boy 14… I don't know about you, but in my youth I was never in situations like that. When you're in somebody's bedroom, you have to be aware of where that can lead to."

The backlash was swift. A variety of celebrities and otherwise verified people took to Twitter to express their disappointment.



We suggest Morrissey take his victim blaming and keep it.

Comedian Chris Gethard wrote, "I don't understand how so much of what Morrissey sings is so beautiful yet so much of what he says is so ugly."

Shirley Manson of Garbage fame was a bit more succinct. "Morrissey has lost the f—king plot… F—k U Morrissey! F—k YOU.

We suggest Morrissey take his victim blaming and keep it.

Alex Rodriguez is no intellectual

We all know that Alex Rodriguez has the best intentions for a very rich ex-baseball man, but we're also not expecting him to be the most intellectual bulb in the box, right?

Surprise, surprise.

Fortunately, we now have someone to tell us what's what. And that someone is Rodriguez's ex-girlfriend's mother.

In a New York Times profile of Anne Wojcicki — whom A.Rod dated for most of 2016 — the 23andMe exec's mom Esther opens up.

"I liked A-Rod, he was a very nice man," she said. "But I right away figured out this was a mismatch. He had no academic background. We couldn't have an intellectual conversation about anything. His main interest in life was something that none of us had ever focused on, which was baseball.

"I wish J-Lo all the luck in the world," she continues. Yeah, sounds about right.

After all, this is the man who wooed his current girlfriend via a "You look sexy AF" sext.

Natalie Portman takes on sexism

Natalie Portman is opening up about sexual harassment in Hollywood — and how long it took her to realize that she was a victim, too.

At Vulture Festival in Los Angeles, the "Jackie" actress says reexamining her past experiences with sexism and harassment made her see them differently. "When I heard everything coming out, I was like, wow, I'm so lucky that I haven't had this. And then, on reflection, I was like, OK, definitely never been assaulted, definitely not, but I've had discrimination or harassment on almost everything I've ever worked on in some way," she says.

Go 'head girl. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

"I went from thinking, 'I don't have a story' to thinking, 'Oh. wait, I have 100 stories,'" she continues.

Portman joins the ranks of women who have talked about their experiences with sexism and harassment in Hollywood, from Angelina Jolie to Gwyneth Paltrow. Here's hoping the more women come out, the more the industry — and other industries — shift towards hearing women out.

It's about time.

Denis Leary, Jeff Ross weigh in on Louis C.K.

"It's weird, right?"

MATT JUUL
@RunTheJuuls
matthew.juul@metro.us

The sexual-harassment allegations against Louis C.K., Harvey Weinstein and other Hollywood stars were front and center at the Comics Come Home event in Boston over the weekend.

Several of the evening's performers, including host Denis Leary, didn't shy away from talking about the scandals during their sets at the TD Garden. After kicking off the show with a pair of musical numbers, Leary dived right into the controveries with his opening monologue.

"Tonight we probably have the only eight men left in Hollywood who haven't been accused of sexual harassment," the Worcester native joked. "What the f—k is going on? It's weird, right?"

Leary went on to say that he "didn't know" about C.K.'s behavior prior to the recent news, but called his fellow comic's actions "a f—king weird, creepy thing."

Comics Come Home returned to the TD Garden on Saturday night. MATT JUUL

"I love Louis. I've known Louis for a long f—king time. It's f—king creepy," Leary told the crowd. "I'm not going to stop being the guy's f—king friend, but we're going to have to have a long conversation."

Leary did offer C.K. some praise for his apology statement, which he believed was a much better reaction to the situation than how actor Richard Dreyfuss recently handled his own sexual harassment controversy.

"Whatever you want to say about Louis, Louis f—king owned up," Leary said. "He's the only guy that's owned up to the whole thing."

Jeff Ross, who also talked about the recent scandals during his set, opened up to Metro about his thoughts on C.K. backstage before the start of Comics Come Home. The Boston University alum believes that some good can actually come out of the controversy.

"Louis is young and has a lot to offer the world," Ross said. "I feel like sometimes these things happen for a reason and there's always a silver lining, even in the worst situations."

GETTY IMAGES

The comedian hopes that C.K. can learn from his mistakes and transform himself into a champion on the issue of sexual harassment.

"People learn and they become champions," Ross said. "Maybe the #MeToo movement has Louis by the balls right now, and maybe one day they'll use him for something. I hate to think that somebody's life would be over and their career would be over."

Ross thinks Sen. Al Franken should receive a similar opportunity to bounce back from his own scandal as well, as the "Saturday Night Live" star turned politician has proved himself to be "a champion of so many important things."

"Even good people do bad things sometimes," Ross said. "Really smart people like Al, they learn from them and they're enlightened and move forward a smarter person."

"Once again, the #MeToo movement has Sen. Al by the nuts, and in a good way," he added. "I think they should use him. They should make the most of this and use him for something, to be a champion."

'Runaways' star wants to team up with Benedict Cumberbatch's Dr. Strange

Lyrica Okano talks Marvel's new Hulu series.

MATT JUUL
@RunTheJuuls
matthew.juul@metro.us

A new group of heroes will join the live-action Marvel universe when "Runaways" debuts on Hulu today.

While the team isn't as well-known as the big screen's "Avengers" or even Netflix's "The Defenders," the series does offer a new spin on the superhero genre. "Runaways" is more of a teen drama, chronicling the story of a group of high school students in Los Angeles who discover that they have powers and find out that their parents are part of a villainous organization.

Lyrica Okano, who plays the magical Wiccan Nico Minoru, is excited to be a part of a new series that already has a ton of hype going into its premiere thanks to the fan-favorite comic books.

"We're just so lucky to be apart of a show that has such a huge fan base behind it from the very beginning because the comics are so popular," Okano tells Metro. "That's definitely a strength we have. I'm just so happy to be apart of it."

If the show turns out to be a hit like many of Marvel's other television projects, Okano hopes that her magic-wielding character can team up with Benedict Cumberbatch's Dr. Strange down the line.

"I don't know what Marvel would have to say about it, but of course, I would totally be down," Okano says. "I hear 'Dr. Strange' is pretty awesome."

Lyrica Okano as Nico Minoru in Marvel's "Runaways." GREG LEWIS/HULU

Aside from the adoring fans and crossover possibilities, Okano is excited to be apart of "Runaways" because it allows her to play an Asian American character that isn't a stereotype.

"Being in this business for a while, I've auditioned for a lot of Asian roles," Okano says. "I've auditioned for the stereotypical Asian roles that call for being that submissive type. I've also auditioned for those Asian roles that call for just being edgy for having that streak of purple in my hair.

"Being able to work on Nico, she has a lot more to show," Okano adds. "She's not just edgy to have it be a fashion statement. It all comes down to her family history and the story that she has to tell."

The actress admits that one of her best friends inspired her take on Nico, the Goth girl of the "Runaways."

"I actually grew up with a best friend who was a Wiccan and who was Japanese-American," Okano says. "When I started working on Nico, I didn't see her as this new type of Asian that I can showcase on the show. I just saw her as someone who I grew up with very closely for 22 years."

"Runaways" debuts on Hulu Tuesday, Nov. 21.

PAUL SARKIS/HULU

Meet Marvel's teen heroes

"Runaways," the latest addition to the ever-growing Marvel universe, is set to debut on Hulu this week. Ahead of its premiere on Tuesday, get to know this ragtag team of superhero teens.

Alex Wilder
Alex (Rhenzy Feliz) isn't the flashiest member of the Runaways, but he's definitely the smartest. The genius of the group comes to find that his mother and father, as well as his friends' parents, are part of a villainous organization called The Pride.

Nico Minoru
Played by Lyrica Okano, Nico is the Goth girl of the Runaways and brings a touch of magic to the group. Using her Staff of One, the Wiccan can conjure up spells to fend off evildoers.

Karolina Dean
Karolina (Virginia Gardner) is truly out of this world. This Runaways member eventually finds out that she's actually an alien who can absorb solar energy.

Gert Yorkes
As a punk, politically active teen, Gert (Ariela Barer) is never afraid to speak her mind. She also has a telepathic link to a genetically engineered dinosaur named Old Lace, so it's probably a good idea to not mess with her.

Chase Stein
Chase (Gregg Sulkin) brings more than just his good looks to the team. While he may come across as your average high school jock, he's also a talented engineer.

Molly Hernandez
Played by Allegra Acosta, Molly is the youngest member on the Runaways roster. Don't let her age fool you, though, as she's also the team's toughest hero thanks to her superhuman strength and invulnerability.

Celebrating sober

The holidays can be especially hard for those in recovery.

JOSHUA CROUTHAMEL
features@metro.us

Finding the perfect gifts. Making sure the house is spotless, or packing a bag and preparing to sleep on an air mattress at moms. Braving the elements — not to mention the airport, the traffic and the unexpected delays. And then there's family to deal with … the holidays are a handful for everyone. So, imagine how much more trying they are if you're abstaining from drugs or alcohol.

This time of year poses huge challenges to people in recovery. We spoke with Dr. Deni Carise, Ph.D., the chief scientific officer at Recovery Centers of America, to find out why, discover effective tools to make it to 2018 sober, and find out how to be a good host to friends or family that are struggling with a substance issue.

On top of it all …

As mentioned, the meals and gatherings, comings and goings are a (joyful) headache for the healthiest person. But it's important to understand additional pressures on people in recovery.

"The holiday spirit brings with it an increased tolerance for partying to excess," says Dr. Carise. "When a guy from the office gets overly tipsy at the office party every year it's often seen as funny rather than problematic." And when a glass of wine is omnipresent, the urge to overindulge is stronger than it would be on any given Tuesday.

We're not saying that Bob in Accounting has a serious problem, but it's worth noting that drug and alcohol hospitalizations increase by 25% between Thanksgiving and the start of the New Year. And "Blackout Wednesday" (the day before turkey) is the biggest binge-drinking day of the year, followed by New Year's Eve. 'Tis the season for poor decision-making.

Keeping clean

Firstly, remind yourself why you're celebrating sober this year. "Think about why you decided to enter recovery, write it down and carry it with you," advises Dr. Carise. There are also plenty of free apps you can put on your phone for when things get tricky — day counters and daily meditations can help reinforce your mission.

It's also important to surround yourself with support. Structure is important during the recovery process, and that can all go out the window when you have to travel away from a sponsor or skip regular meetings for family engagements. That said, we're more connected than ever before — have a few phone numbers on speed dial, and do some research on meetings you can attend if you need them. Big cities literally have Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous meetings around the clock; if you find yourself isolated, both offer 24-hour hotlines.

Family drama's at an annual high this time of year. GETTY IMAGES

Another idea is to prepare an excuse for a quick exit. "Have a few lines ready for when you turn down a drink," advises Dr. Carise, "because it's no one's business if you opt for a Diet Coke!" Additionally, you can advise your host that you've got several other parties to attend, "which acts as both a good reason to leave early or if things get rough, and steer clear of alcohol [if you're driving]."

Finally, it's a great idea to look for volunteer opportunities. According to a 10-year study by Case Western, volunteering greatly reduces the odds of a relapse, and there's no better time of year to give back to those in need.

Off the wagon?

things about being in recovery is that you learn you can make a life change any day you want — you don't need to wait for New Year's Day to live your best life," says Dr. Carise. If you slip, own your mistake, and reach out for help.

Caring for your recovering guests

Hosting someone you know is in recovery from drug or alcohol problems? Be open with them. "Tell your guest you want to be supportive, and feel free to ask them if they'd rather you not serve alcohol, for example," says Dr. Carise.

And say "I'm proud of you."

Make this holiday season one to actually remember.

Tom Brady and the Patriots look to be on a collision course with the Philadelphia Eagles. GETTY IMAGES

DON'T BANK ON EAGLES VS. PATS SUPER BOWL

@dannypicard

Don't make any reservations for a New England vs Philadelphia Super Bowl just yet, though I completely understand the mindset for both sides.

The Patriots are 8-2 and have won six straight after whooping the Oakland Raiders, 33-8, in Mexico on Sunday. The Eagles are 9-1 and have won eight straight after crushing the Cowboys, 37-9, in Dallas on Sunday night.

In a league that's never been more unpredictable, the only sure thing every weekend is the Patriots and Eagles holding up their end of the bargain.

Their dominance this season is a perfect example of what you must have in order to be successful in the NFL: a quarterback. Through Sunday, Carson Wentz has thrown the most touchdown passes in the NFL this year with 25, and Tom Brady has thrown the second-most touchdown passes with 22.

If you had to choose one over the other right now, I'm not sure how anyone could take Wentz over Brady, but that doesn't mean we should disregard what the Eagles' second-year QB is doing right now.

At the same time, that promising future Wentz is providing in Philly shouldn't make you believe the Eagles are ready to slay the beast that is the Patriots.

There's only one way to find out, of course. And that would have to be at Super Bowl LII in Minnesota.

But we're a long ways away from February. So I'm here to pump the brakes for everyone who's fast-forwarding to a Patriots versus Eagles Super Bowl after Week 11.

As dominant as both teams have looked thus far, each have a few roadblocks in their path the rest of the way.

The Patriots are currently the No. 2 seed in the AFC, behind the No. 1 seed Pittsburgh Steelers, who are also 8-2. The Steelers hold the "conference record" tiebreaker over the Patriots. But, in Week 15, the two teams will do battle in Pittsburgh, with the winner of that game most likely clinching the top spot in the conference.

Also, for the Patriots, five of their final six games are against AFC East teams. Granted, the Buffalo Bills, Miami Dolphins, and New York Jets are all currently out of the playoff picture, but they're all also mathematically alive. You can't expect all five of those games to be a walk in the park.

The Eagles are currently the No. 1 seed in the NFC, but the No. 2 seed Minnesota Vikings and No. 3 seed New Orleans Saints are both just one game behind them.

Also, for the Eagles, the rest of their schedule features games in Seattle in Week 13, in Los Angeles against the Rams in Week 14, and a rematch with the Cowboys in Week 17 that will see Ezekiel Elliott back from his suspension.

My ultimate point is, it's still too early to crown a conference champ. But make no mistake about it, the road to the Super Bowl will be much tougher in the NFC because, unlike the AFC with New England and Pittsburgh, the NFC looks to be more than just a two-horse race.

I realize I haven't acknowledged the 7-3 Jacksonville Jaguars, who have won four straight and are the No. 3 seed in the AFC with the best defense in football. But they have some more work to do to earn everyone's respect.

After all, we're talking about Super Bowl contenders here. And most of that talk, through Week 11, has begun and ended with the dominant Patriots and Eagles destined to collide on Feb. 4.

It very well could happen. I'm just here to tell you that, in this league, this year, nothing is a lock.

And the road to Minnesota, for both New England and Philadelphia, won't be as easy as you think.

Patriots yet again own November

Per usual, the Patriots are getting better as the season wears on.

JAMES TOSCANO

Patriots cornerback Johnson Bademosi gets fired up during a win over Oakland on Sunday in Mexico City. GETTY IMAGES

When it comes to football, Patriots fans have plenty to be thankful for this Thanksgiving.

With Week 11 in the books, the Patriots yet again proved to the NFL world that they are a cut above, manhandling the Raiders south of the border in Mexico City, 33-8.

With high altitude on the horizon for that game, Bill Belichick elected to keep his team in Colorado Springs after the win in Denver to prepare for the Raiders.

The Patriots basically just ate, drank, and breathed football together for a week straight. And that showed on the football field as they jumped out to an early lead and piled it on the rest of the way.

It's New England's sixth straight win and 13th straight road win dating back to last season, which is a team record. The win also guarantees the Patriots will finish with a record of .500 or above for the 17th straight year, making them the only team in the NFL to do that over that span. The record is 21 years by the Dallas Cowboys (1965-85).

Not coincidentally, Sunday's win was also the sixth straight game in which the opponent was held to 17 points or less.

According to Pro Football Focus, the Raiders came into the game with their offensive line having the third-highest pass blocking efficiency. But you wouldn't know it based on the way the Patriots played on defense. Raiders QB Derek Carr was under pressure on 24-percent of his dropbacks and had a passer rating of just 24.8 on these plays as he completed just 5 of his 11 attempts.

The big win over the Raiders is the latest example that the Patriots are getting stronger as the season goes on. A quick look around the league and the same cannot be said for many teams that were once considered threats.

The Broncos dropped to 3-7 after another loss at home to the Bengals. Meanwhile, the Chiefs, formerly the team to beat in the AFC, fell to 6-4 on the season after an ugly 12-9 loss to the Giants. And we now know that the Packers are nothing without Aaron Rodgers.

There are, however, some teams continuing to play good football. The Steelers at 8-2 remain the Patriots' biggest threat in the AFC, with those two teams meeting in a month. In the NFC, the Saints haven't lost since the Patriots beat them in Week 2, and the Eagles have the best record in the NFL at 9-1 behind QB Carson Wentz.

But the Patriots aren't concerned with any team but their own, and should continue to improve and rack up the wins with upcoming games against the Dolphins and Bills.

"Well, I think the players have worked extremely hard," Bill Belichick told reporters in a conference call on Monday. "We've had our moments. There's still a lot of things that we need to work on and need to improve in. Each game gets a little more demanding because you're opponent has had another week of things that you know they've shown and you have to work on, and so the volume builds up. Of course, our volume has built up over the last ten weeks, too. We just have to keep grinding away week by week, and that's what we'll try to do."

Aries Share your feelings, but listen to what others have to say as well. Compromise will encourage a chance to make changes that will result in additional benefits.

Taurus If you share your feelings with someone facing similar circumstances, together you will find a way to overcome any dilemma.

Gemini Don't be fooled by a sales pitch or someone trying to take advantage of you emotionally or financially. Be disciplined when it comes to money matters.

Cancer Take a different approach to the way you run your home. Listen to what youngsters have to say. The insight provided will help you make an important decision.

Leo You'll be torn between what you want to do and what you must do. Preparation and organization will give you the chance to keep your promises and fulfill your dreams.

Virgo Look for alternative solutions. Learn from past mistakes. Choose sincerity and integrity over empty promises. Aim for greater stability and a healthier lifestyle.

Libra Don't force your will on others or let anyone take advantage of you. Compromise will lead to the type of equality that you want in your important relationships.

Scorpio Don't get angry when you can get busy. If there is something you want to accomplish, make choices that will allow you the freedom to do so.

Sagittarius If you share your ideas, you'll discover you have more support than you thought. Organize what you want to see happen and pursue your goals with discipline.

Capricorn If you share your thoughts and feelings, it will help clear up any misconceptions someone has about you or your motives. Physical change will boost your morale.

Aquarius It's up to you to bring about change. Go beyond the call of duty to stand out. Use your intelligence and discipline to achieve your goal.

Pisces Your intuition will not let you down. Trust in your gut feeling, regardless of what someone tells you. Concentrate on your goals and personal endeavors. EUGENIA LAST
